Introduction

International Exchange Initiatives
University of Kansas
September 2014

In order to promote scholarly dialogue between The University of Kansas and institutions of higher learning around the world, KU encourages and supports the establishment of international programs and exchange initiatives. International opportunities that allow for participation by students, faculty and administrators deserve the greatest support from The University of Kansas, because they maximize interaction between institutions and promote the most comprehensive sharing of ideas. The opportunities should be consistent with the mission of the University and serve the best interests of the University.

Recognizing that instructional resources are too limited to allow for an infinite number of international program and exchanges, new agreements should generally complement existing research and curricular strengths at KU. A regular process of review evaluates existing programs and allows for initiatives that reflect changing world situations and changing priorities at The University of Kansas.

An exchange agreement is a binding, legal contract formalizing the terms of collaboration between The University of Kansas and a partner institution. The text must be reviewed and approved by the General Counsel and the Associate Vice Provost, International Programs, and signed by the appropriate authorities at partner institution.

The University of Kansas has developed and utilizes four basic types of agreements: two versions of the Agreement of Cooperation; Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement; and Visiting Student Agreement. If warranted, KU may negotiate an exchange agreement that is a combination of the two basic types of agreements. It should be noted that the Office of Study Abroad administers many study abroad programs, both long and short term, that do not require the signing of any kind of exchange agreement as they do not involve the exchange of students. Examples of these types of arrangements are contracts with a facilitating agency, memberships in a consortium, or KU faculty directed and taught programs. (Appendices E, F and G)

The Agreement of Cooperation (Appendix A and B) is the first step in establishing an institutional relationship. Both parties agree to cooperate in joint research and educational activities through the exchange of invitations to scholars and of information and academic material of mutual interest. Both parties agree that all financial arrangements necessary to implement this agreement must be negotiated for each project and will depend upon the availability of funds. This document is always signed by the Associate Vice Provost of International Programs and the Chancellor of the University. The Agreement of Cooperation can be tailored to meet the research and educational interests for a particular department or school. In addition to the Associate Vice Provost and Chancellor, the document should then be signed by the chair and by the professor who is directly involved in implementation of this specific program with an Addendum to the original Agreement of Cooperation. The existence of an Agreement of Cooperation between KU and an international partner has proved to be valuable for faculty/departments/schools seeking outside funding for a research/curricular project involving the two (or more) institutions.

The Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement (Appendix C) is designed to establish and maintain a student direct exchange program. As it involves the payment of tuition, it must be signed not only by the Director of the Office of Study Abroad, the Associate Vice Provost of International Programs, the Chancellor of the University, but also by the Governor and the President of the Board of Regents, One signed copy of each Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement is filed with the Office of the Secretary of State of Kansas. Since a new student exchange will be administered by the Office of Study Abroad, that office must be involved in negotiating every new Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement. However, as the Office of Study Abroad strives to establish student exchange programs that might be an integral part of a major, individual faculty member or departments who are interested in setting up a student exchange among students in their discipline are encouraged to propose such a program to the Office of Study Abroad. The reciprocal Student exchange includes the exchange of both undergraduate and graduate students.

Guidelines for initiation of international exchange agreement:

1. New agreements may be initiated through appropriate channels by individual faculty members, departments or schools, or administrative units. Individual faculty members should discuss such initiatives with and seek approval from the chair of their department or dean of their school. Individual faculty members, departments and schools should then contact the Associate Vice Provost of International programs if they wish to pursue an Agreement of Cooperation and they should contact the Director of the Office of Study Abroad should they wish to pursue a Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement.

2. In all cases, the individual faculty member, department or school should provide information about the proposed partner institution and demonstrate how implementing a new agreement would be consistent with enhancing or developing existing research and curricular strengths of the University.

3. The Associate Vice Provost of International Programs and/or the Director of the Office of Study Abroad will provide advice on how the proposed exchange can be developed.

4. An outline or draft of the proposed agreement should be submitted to the Office of International Programs for review as to correct legal form and conformity with the University’s stated objectives in international exchange initiatives. International Programs will then forward the proposed agreement to the General Counsel’s Office for review.

5. All proposed agreements, especially those that have deviated from the approved generic models, must be approved by the General Counsel before the process of securing signatures on the final copies. It is customary, as well as courteous, to submit the draft of a proposed agreement to the relevant official, usually including the Dean or Director of the International Office, at the potential partner institution.

6. When the proposed agreement has been approved by relevant officials at both institutions, International Programs will coordinate the process of securing the requisite signatures on three to five copies of the agreement. The document is then signed by the individual faculty member or chair/dean of the department/school, if appropriate, by the Associate Vice Provost of International Programs, and by the Director of the Office of Study Abroad, in the case of a Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement, before it is forwarded to the contact person at the potential partner institution for the necessary signatures. These last mentioned signatures normally include the chancellor president or rector, as well as the head of the international office, and individual professor or dean or head of department/faculty, if appropriate. Upon the return of the several copies of the agreement, International Programs will forward them to the General Counsel’s Office in order to secure the signatures of the Chancellor, and of the Governor and President of the Board of Regents, in the case of a Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement.

7. One signed copy of every exchange agreement is filed with the University General Counsel. One signed copy of the Reciprocal Student Exchange Agreement is filed with the Secretary of State. Copies of every agreement are filed with International Programs; copies of every Reciprocal Exchange Agreement are filed with Study Abroad. The remaining copies are forwarded to the contact at the partner institution by International Programs, Study Abroad, or an individual Department/school or faculty member as appropriate.

The Visiting Student Agreement (Appendix D) is designed to establish and maintain a short term visiting student program for international students to study at KU for a semester or academic year. The Visiting Student Agreement can be tailored to meet the educational interests of a particular department, school or international university. Students who participate in the visiting student program are self-funded, funded by their home university, or home government. This document is always signed by the Associate Vice Provost of International Programs and the Chancellor of the University. Since new visiting student programs will be administered by the Office of International programs, that office must be involved in negotiating every new Visiting Student Agreement.
